The Dublin History Group Research Centre had a great launch as a part of About Time 2012, thank you to all those who came along and those who sent their best wishes. We have arranged for local Max Jaeger of Original Signs to do a sign for us, we are working with council at the moment, our proposed sign is to the left of the article. We will start doing our workshops and opening the doors for research and study very soon

So how do you find out what is happening

1. Look for these articles in the Dublin Dispatch
2. Look at our website under the Research Tab
3. Or pop in when we are open

We still have a little fine tuning to do on the research part of centre but we will be holding our first workshop on the 29th July as part of National Family History Week. The Workshop will be hosted by Tanya Gilbert and will focus on preserving and displaying your old family photos, Tania will talk about taking care of your old photos and do a demonstration of scrapbooking with some DHG photos. This workshop will be free of charge and run from 1.30—3.30. Booking forms are available in the newsletter, on line and at the centre.

Opening Times are yet finalised as we sort out our resources but definitely Sunday afternoons are on the cards and well as during the week. Keep an eye on the website for further updates

If you would like to see any workshops or displays let us know and we will see what we can do.
